Amnesty International Report on Xenophobia Displacement (September 2008)

This report was compiled by Amnesty International and describes the limited options facing individuals displaced by the May 2008 xenophobic violence. Amnesty International gathered information for this report through field research, interviews, meetings, reports by other organizations working directly on the issues covered in this report, press reports, legal pleadings as well as public statements made by various state officials. Amnesty International conducted two research missions to look at the situations of those displaced by the May xenophobic attacks, one in June/July and the second in August/September.

Report of the UN of IDP COSS Sites in Western Cape Province (29 July 2008)

"From the findings of the assessment it is clear that the City and Provincial authorities have spent a great deal of time, effort and resources on the provision of services to safe sites for the IDPs dislocated by xenophobic violence in Cape Town in May of 2008. However due to the fact that the current protracted displacement situation presents the government authorities with a crisis situation that goes beyond their recent experience there are a number of areas which could be strengthened. It is the opinion of the assessment team that it is possible for the government to address the most urgent and important findings with a minimum of additional expenditure and effort and thereby improve safety and the living conditions of IDPs."
